Description of tasks:

A post-doc position is offered as part of the NCN Sonata Bis project: "Deliberative Innovations in Central and Eastern Europe - a panacea for democracy in crisis? (DelibDemCEE)." The aim of the project is to analyze and evaluate selected forms of deliberative democracy in the countries of Central and Eastern Europe and to find answers to the questions whether they contribute to the improvement of democracy and greater involvement of citizens. Research goals will be achieved by studying citizens' assemblies organized in Poland, the Czech Republic, Slovakia and Hungary. Investigating the ways in which deliberative innovations affect democracy during its crisis — either through citizen engagement or shaping public opinion, or by directly influencing the political system — will require a variety of research methods, both qualitative and quantitative.

As a Post-Doctoral Researcher, you will be responsible for:

1. Preparing Research Designs:
 - Develop research designs for about five papers within the three work packages of the project.
 - Design and implement suitable research methodologies.
 - Collaborate with the research team to ensure the integration of qualitative and quantitative approaches in the research designs.
 - Ensure ethical considerations and data protection protocols are followed throughout the research process.
2. Conducting Research and Analysis:
 - Collect and analyze data using the prescribed research methodologies.
 - Collaborate with team members in data collection, data cleaning, and data management processes.
 - Conduct statistical analysis and/or qualitative data analysis to address the research questions
 - Interpret research findings and contribute to academic publications and reports.
 - Prepare and submit single or co-authored articles (preferable three) to reputable peer-reviewed journals, based on the research conducted within the project.
3. Collaborative Teamwork:
 - Engage in regular research meetings and discussions with the research team to share progress, insights, and challenges.
 - Collaborate with team members on joint research activities, including data analysis, report writing, and project deliverables.
 - Collaborate with the research team to ensure the dissemination of research findings through academic conferences and workshops.
4. Project Support:
 - Assist in project-related administrative tasks, such as organizing meetings, managing project documentation, and liaising with project partners.
 - Contribute to the development of funding proposals and research grant applications for future projects.

List of required documents:

- Cover letter expressing your interest and highlighting your relevant qualifications.
- Curriculum vitae detailing your academic background, research experience, and publication record.
- A document confirming obtaining a doctoral degree.
- Two writing samples (e.g., published articles, conference papers) showcasing your research abilities.
- Contact information for two references who can speak to your academic and research capabilities.

Candidates are asked to submit all documents in accordance of the IRK system (<https://usosirk.amu.edu.pl>) and to submit an application electronically to: paulina.pospieszana@amu.edu.pl no later than September 10th, 2023. Shortlisted candidates will be contacted for an interview. During the interview, candidates will be asked to present their current scientific and practical achievements that fit the purpose of the project. The interview will be conducted in English. We anticipate the position to start on October 15th, 2023 or as soon as possible thereafter.
