Abstract of the Doctoral Dissertation: The Military Thought of Jan Joachim Kampenhausen (1680–1742)

The military thought of Jan Joachim Kampenhausen constitutes an in-depth analysis of this author's reflections on military matters, preserved primarily in his two most important works: the manuscript treatise Obserwacye do wojennych operacyi y akcyi dla kommenderującego officera abo wodza and Chwała y apologia kopiy y pik cum refutatione niektorych zarzutow przeciwko nim, published in Kalisz in 1737. Through extensive research, including a comparative analysis of his reflections with the works of other eighteenth-century authors, it has been determined which of the ideas presented were his original contributions, which represented commonly practiced approaches, and which were drawn from other sources. Finally, the study offers an assessment of the significance of Kampenhausen's military thought—both from a historical perspective, with regard to the army of the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth, and from a contemporary perspective, in the context of research on the history of Polish military thought.
